The Ministry of Health is seeking a strategic and innovative public health preventive medicine (PHPM) physician specialist with strong communication skills to join our team as a Deputy Chief Medical Health Officer in Regina, Saskatchewan. Reporting to the Executive Director and the Chief Medical Officer Health Officer (CMHO), this position provides public health expertise to support the Office of the CMHO (OCMHO) on issues of public and population health importance.

As one of two Deputy Chief Medical Health Officers, you will assist the CMHO and Chief Population Health Epidemiologist (CPHE) in monitoring and reporting on the health of the population in Saskatchewan and play a critical role in advising on and supporting the implementation of public health policy, standards, and practices. Your focus will be system-wide as you collaborate with other ministries, the Saskatchewan Health Authority (SHA), federal and First Nations jurisdiction partners, and front-line public health providers in the provision of medical expertise. As an integral member of the OCMHO, you will share accountability for achieving government public health priorities and providing leadership in the areas of Environmental Health, Health Surveillance, Communicable Disease Management, and Population Health and Wellness Promotion.

Educational and Experience Requirements

- A medical degree recognized in Canada;
- Fellowship with the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada in Public Health and Preventive Medicine, or equivalent combination of education, training and experience;
- Eligible for a license to practice medicine in Saskatchewan from the College of Physicians of Saskatchewan. A license to practice as a specialist in Public Health and Preventive Medicine is strongly preferred;
- Proven experience in leading teams in a complex environment including physicians; and,
- Knowledge and experience of the Saskatchewan health system and experience in a government environment is an asset.
